Revised ADA Regulations Effective on March 15, 2011
Offer New Guidance for Recreation Providers!

The U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) amended Final Rule substantially revising and expanding the regulations implementing the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) became effective on March 15, 2011. The regulations include a broad range of changes that will enable recreation providers to make both their physical environments and social policies inclusive of people of all abilities so that everyone can fully enjoy recreation in their communities. A brief overview is provided below.

What titles of the ADA are covered by the revised regulations?

- The new regulations apply to Title II of the ADA, covering programs, activities, and services of public entities, and Title III of the ADA, covering public accommodations, commercial facilities and private entities offering certain examinations and courses.
- Common examples of facilities covered under Title II include state and local government park and recreation facilities, public schools, and state licensing and exam centers.
- Common examples of facilities covered under Title III include hospitals, restaurants, retail stores, hotels, movie theaters, private schools, convention centers, day care centers, and recreation facilities, such as sports stadiums and fitness clubs.

What are some of the key changes in the revised regulations?

- Among other substantive changes, the amended regulations adopt the 2010 ADA Standards for Accessible Design, which implement new accessibility guidelines for government facilities and commercial places of public accommodation. Compliance with the 2010 Standards for Accessible Design is permitted as of September 15, 2010, but not required until March 15, 2012. The Department of Justice has prepared fact sheets identifying the major changes in the rules.
- In addition, the amended regulations address numerous accessibility issues, including those specific to recreation services:
  - selling and issuing tickets to individuals with disabilities
  - accommodating service animals, wheelchairs and other power-driven mobility devices
  - providing auxiliary communication aids
  - making reservations in places of lodging

Because these changes were effective March 15, 2011, recreation providers need to ensure that their policies and procedures reflect the new guidelines and that all staff are trained to implement them.

(Source: Revised ADA Regulations implementing Title II and Title III http://www.ada.gov/regs2010/ADAregs2010.htm)

What are some of the recreation environments covered under the new regulations?

- Amusement Rides
- Recreational Boating Facilities
- Exercise Machines and Equipment
- Fishing Piers and Platforms
- Golf Facilities
- Miniature Golf Facilities
- Play Areas
- Swimming Pools, Wading Pools, and Spas
- Shooting Facilities with Firing Positions
The 2010 ADA Standards for Accessible Design

The DOJ characterized these new guidelines as “more than incremental” compared with the previously applicable standards, which were issued in 1991. The heightened standards are technical in nature and include, for example: wheelchair access points (e.g., wheelchair spaces and companion seats may not be located on or obstructed by temporary platforms or other movable structures); reach ranges; single-user toilet rooms; assembly areas; location of accessible routes; entrances from parking structures; and location of guest rooms in lodging facilities.

Wheelchairs and Other Assistive Mobility Devices

The regulations adopt a two-tiered approach to mobility devices, distinguishing between wheelchairs and “other power-driven mobility devices,” which include a range of devices not specifically designed for individuals with mobility impairments (e.g., Segways). Wheelchairs and other devices designed for use by people with mobility impairments must be permitted in all areas open to pedestrian use. “Other power-driven mobility devices” must be permitted unless such use would fundamentally alter the entity’s programs, services or activities, create a direct threat, or create a safety hazard.

Service Animals

The regulations define a “service animal” as any dog that is individually trained to do work or perform tasks for the benefit of an individual with a disability. Other animals and dogs that are not trained to assist with a disability or who merely provide emotional support are excluded from this definition. The rule also clarifies that individuals with mental disabilities who use service animals that are trained to perform a specific task are protected by the ADA.

Miniature Horses

Although not included in the definition of service animals, the regulations permit the use of trained miniature horses as an alternative to dogs, where appropriate and in accordance with the assessment factors outlined in the revised regulations.

Reservations for Places of Lodging

Places of lodging must: (1) allow individuals with disabilities to make reservations for accessible guest rooms during the same hours and in the same manner as other guests; and (2) identify and describe accessible features in the hotels and guest rooms. Furthermore, places of lodging must ensure that reserved accessible guest rooms are actually available for those guests with disabilities upon their arrival.

Communication

The new regulation includes guidance on how to provide effective communication for persons with disabilities. For example, the regulation allows for use of video remote interpreting services as an auxiliary aid, if the entity complies with specified performance standards.
Ticketing

The regulations provide guidance on the sale of tickets for accessible seating, the sale of season tickets, the hold and release of accessible seating to non-disabled individuals, ticket pricing, prevention of the fraudulent purchase of accessible seating, and the ability to purchase multiple tickets when buying accessible seating.

“The Safe Harbor” Provision

The final rule includes a “safe harbor” provision protecting facilities built or altered in compliance with the 1991 Standards for Accessible Design.

Those facilities are not required to comply with the 2010 Standards until future alterations or renovations impact issues addressed by the 2010 Standards.

Notably, however, the safe harbor provision does not apply to those portions of existing facilities that are subject to new accessibility requirements not covered by the 1991 Standards. For recreation providers, this means that the newly established guidelines for recreation areas must be addressed either by alteration or a transition plan by the March 15, 2012 deadline. Those features, such as accessible means of entry to a swimming pool must be modified to the extent readily achievable to comply with the 2010 Standards.

This article is reprinted and adapted from the DBTAC: Southeast ADA Center, retrieved from http://sedbtac.org/ada/publications/ADA_Revised_Regulations_March-15-2011.htm#keychanges

To learn more about the ADA and 2010 changes, please visit the ADA Homepage at: www.ada.gov/